Administrator of Soviet Station Accused in Testimony of Denying Eskimos Food.

MOSCOW, May 23.-The "Tyrant of Wrangel Island," H. B. Semenchuk, was sentenced to death toterror at the Soviet station in the Far North.

Semenchuk was accused of caus ing four myste ous deaths while he was administrator at Wrangel

His co-defendant, S. P. Startseff, also was sentenced to death.

The death sentence is carried out by shooting.

Semenchuk was charged, among other things, with killing Dr. W. R. Wulfson, member of a scientific expedition that visited the island during the winter of 1934-35. Startseff was charged with complicity in the murder.

Sam Samico, 45, Killed Thursday Night by Motorist Who Fled

From Scene. The body of a man killed by utomobile as he attempted to cross Fourth street in the 1000 block Thursday night was identified today as that of Sam Samico 45-year-old disabled war veteran, of the Admiralty from 1911 to 1915 and 1006A Julia street. Identification was by Henry Kryssa, who said Samico, unmarried, was a roomer at his home and had lived on a Government pension.

The driver of the car which left the scene after hitting Samico, was arrested yesterday and identified as Everett H. Dailey, 26, a nolder, 1510A South Tenth street. Dailey, who is facing another charge growing out of leaving the scene of a minor accident a month ago, was arrested after police found his damaged automobile on the street and traced its ownership. He said he drove on after hitting Samico because he "didn't think the man was hurt badly."

A verdict of homicide was returned by a Coroner's jury after an inquest today and Dailey was ordered held under $1500 bond, pending action by the grand jury.

Chambermaid Points Out Men She Says Frequented Alleged Ringleader's Hotel Apartment.

NEW YORK, May 23.-A chambermaid in a Park avenue hotel where Charles (Lucky) Luciano lived for six months last year identified four of the defendants in the Luciano vice trial today as frequent visitors to his apartment.

Marjorie Brown picked out "Little Davy" Betillo, "Abie" Wahrman, James Frederico and Meyer Berk. nan as the four men who went to the Luciano apartment. She pointed Luciano as the man who lived in the apartment under the name of Charles Ross.

Luciano has been charged by Thomas E. Dewey, special prosecutor, with being the head of a vice syndicate controlling prostitution in

The girl said she was employed as a bath and chamber maid at the hotel and she worked on the floor on which Luciano had his apartment. She said she was positive of her identification despite efforts of defense counsel to get her to admit they were based on pictures shown to her by Dewey's aids.

Before she took the stand, de-fense counsel finished cross-examination of Florence (Cokey Flo) Brown, former operator of a vice resort and sweetheart of Frederico, She testified for the State yester day that she was present on fraquent occasions when Luciano discussed operation of the alleged vice ring with his aids.

Unemployed and Their Leaders Discuss Problems of Rent, Food and Organization Work.

Members of the American Workers' Union, considering the problem of evictions last night, decided that in the future they would moye the furniture of evicted families to the City Hall lawn so that all might see what had been done.

Among the 250 who attended last night's meeting, held at Labor Center, Leonard and Easton avenues, were three who had eviction notices with them, and wanted to knew what to do about it. One of them had already been moved out, and his furniture was stored in a neighbor's hall.

There was talk of sending a delegation to move the furniture back into the vacated rooms, but after much discussion it was agreed to send a committee today to talk to the landlord. In the other two cases the families are to be evicted next week, and there will be time to ap-peal to the St. Louis Relief Ad-ministration for the needed rent

Family Complication. There was a family complication in the case of the man whose furniture had been moved out, which made hasty action inadvisable. His landlord was his father-in-law. Furthermore the evicted man, who said he was Louis Ritter, 1357 Goodfellow boulevard, was "on a project"-working for the WPA.

ORATORICAL NOTE.

Senator Dickinson of Iowa was fulminating in his well-known oratorical manner about the tax bill, referring to the bill as it came from the House, when Senator Connally got him to admit that he did not know what the Senate committee's alterations would be. That drew from Senator Connally the question: "How can the Senator discuss the bill when he doesn" know what it is going to be?"

It recalls the story of the young woman who asked a famous Senator how long he could speak on any given subject. "Well," he replied, "if I know a subject thoroughly, I can speak for as long as an hour or an hour and a half. But if it is a subject I know nothing about, I can speak indefinitely."

Jonathan Mitchell in the New Republic.

HE new Soil-Conservation and Domestic Allotment Act, or the SCADA, was formulated in a rush after the Supreme Court's invalidation of the AAA. Nevertheless, it is supposed to constitute a perma-nent national agricultural program. We are able to find in it some unified, clearly an-point of view. As stated by Mr. Roosevelt, one of the ends of the SCADA is to raise farm income. This is to be done, as under the AAA, chiefly by rewarding farmers for cutting down their luction of cash crops. A second objective is to maintain and increase soil fertility. No one has yet explained how these two aims are to be reconciled. If it is true that the prosperity of the farmer requires a reduction of our allegedly excess farm acreage, obviously what he needs is fewer fertile acres, not more. If od-sized deserts could be created in the Middle West and South, with cactus, gila monsters and bleached buffalo skulls farmer-according to administration doc-

Messrs. Roosevelt and Wallace are trying to plow a furrow in two directions at once, which is a hard thing to do.

A number of authorities who deplore the restrictive half of the SCADA feel that it deserves support because of its provisions for soil conservation. There is no doubt about the urgent national need to check erosion, no doubt that we are destroying soil fertility at a rate that will half-ruin the country in another hundred years. But it seems to me the methods chosen by SCADA are inexcusably inefficient and expensive.

Like the AAA, the SCADA does not discriminate between farmers already using scientific technique and those who aren't During the present year, for example, all farmers growing corn are asked to cut their acreage by 15 per cent. Among the Middle West corn farmers, there are some with vast knowledge of scientific agriculture, men who-among other conservation practiceshave rotated their crops for years. In their case, it is ridiculous to say that the SCADA romotes soil conservation. Equally, in the fiddle West there are some of the worst farmers in the world. For them, a cut of 15 per cent is wholly inadequate.

Under the AAA, the failure to distinguish among the varying circumstances of farmers was a steady source of protests. Their justice was freely admitted by Mr. Wallace. year ago, he undertook to set up his so-called plan for regional adjustment This was a proposal for the scientific apportionment of production, first, among agricultural regions; next, among subdivision in each region; last, among the counties and Here was national planning on a grand scale, and had Mr. Wallace persisted the immense, cumbersome apparatus of the regional-adjustment plan was warmly welland-grant colleges and the best farmers, but tion of most of the rank and file. With the SCADA, Mr. Wallace made a new effort to solve the problem. To quote from the SCADA's order to county committees: "Adjustments will be made where a farmer's soil-depleting or soil-conserving acreage is materially out of line with that of similar farms in the same locality." But since, in mittee will themselves suffer if exceptional adjustments are allowed, this solution seems unpromising.

The soil-conservation half of the SCADA is open to another, and far more serious, attack. Shortly after Mr. Roosevelt took of-fice, a Federal Soil Conservation Service was created, devoted solely to that end. It has had an astounding success. With the cooperation of 12,000 farmers, it has set up 141 experimental areas, totaling 6,700,000 acres, and on, this land it has permanently ended erosion. At Dalhart, Tex., pear the center of the dust-storm area, H. H. Finnell -one of the geniuses of the Department of Agriculture—has checked blowing on 19,100 acres out of an experimental area of 19.700

Since 1933, the Soil Conservation Service has received $47,000,000, some of which is still unspent. Its officials say that the top cost for controlling erosion over most of the country would be about $5 an acre. A large part of the job consists of instructing far ers in improving techniques, and under the stimulus of the Soil Conservation Service many farmers have begun to rotate their crops. They are doing voluntarily—without the hope of any reward other than the improvement of their land-all that the SCADA would bribe them to do at the rate of $10 an acre, and they are doing a great deal more besides.

Experts say that if Messrs. Roosevelt and Wallace had been ready to turn over to the Soil Conservation Service the $470,000,000 to distributed through the SCADA in 1936, and had been ready to repeat this appropriation for two more years, the threat of erosion in this country would be definitely In contrast, the methods of the SCADA by themselves will never stop ero-

Perhaps the only way both permanently to improve the farmer's status and to assure all of us more and cheaper food and clothing is through the application of scientific techniques to agriculture. This is probable whether farmers are to be brought under a large measure of social control or left free to compete among themselves. There are many problems involved—an important one is the present grip of middlemen on the farmers' markets-that cannot be discussed

The SCADA, however, seems likely to serve as an instrument for saving the inefficient producer, and for keeping food and clothes high-priced. Because it is so largely con-cerned with restricting production, it is a poor device for soil conservation. Mr. Wal-lace and the men around him are the most brilliant group in the administration: are entitled to something better from them.

Ghost-Written Speeches

From the Richmond (Va.) Times-Dispatch

N THE Baltimore Sun, J. Fred Essary, who enjoys an unusually wide acquain ance with the public men of the nation and what they are doing, confirms the prevailing suspicion that many political celebrities, in cluding Presidents, do not write all their speeches, but depend upon expert craftsmea or research attaches to compose them.

Mr. Harding, for example, had Judson C. Welliver for this work, Mr. Hoover leaned heavily upon French Strother and Ogden L Mills, and even Alfred E. Smith, famous for his gift of saving things in a striking way, took Judge Proskauer along during the 1921 campaign to write the preliminary drafts of mportant utterances, Delivery of ghost-written speeches, how ever, is not confined to occupants of the White House. Many a Congressman, Mr. Essary says, pays out cash for this sort of service. It will be remembered that, just short time ago, Senator Dickinson sought to startle his colleagues with the statement that thousands of poverty-stricken Americans were eating dog food. Senators had evidence that the speech had been prepared in the Western headquarters of the Republican party in Chicago.

Mr. Essary recalls the amusing incident of two Representatives delivering identical memorial addresses. The same ghost writer had listened to the other, and it was until the Congressional Record appeared that the faux pas was discovered.

employ ghost writers, and would resent bitterly any such imputation, are provided in Senators Glass and Borah. Both men are known as speakers of great ability. The Idahoan has a polished, rhetorical style; the Virginian a clarity and incisiveness which distinguish all his addresses. Like Mr. Essary, we can see no special impropriety in the delivery of ghost-written peeches, provided the addresses reflect the views of the men who deliver them. The President of the United States is a very busy man and he could not be expected to write all his orations for many and varied occasions. This applies with almost equal force to Governors. At the moment, we are thinking of at least one public man whom a ghost writer has lifted from the depths of duliness almost to the heights of sparkling oratory. Mr. Hoover's speeches these days are actually worth reading. Ben Allen, his ghost writer, is well worth his hire.

Detroit Prosecutor Receives Reports That Black Legion Has Terrorized Many Persons.

CHARGES AGAINST 7 TO BE FILED

Four Men Admit Taking Partin 'Execution' WPA Worker, Accused of Mistreating Wife.

DETROIT, May 23.—Prosecutor Duncan C. McCrea ordered an investigation today of reports that many persons had been terrorized by vigilantes of the Black Legion, secret society uncovered by the ar rest of 16 men in connection with the "execution" of Charles A. Poole, WPA worker,

McCrea said the arrests had been followed by a stream of reports from citizens who said they had been the victims of the group, which he said was reported to have 10,-000 members in Wayne (Detroit)

William W. Voisine, Ecorse Vil lage manager, said police were investigating the possibility that mem-bers of the organization bombed his home last Aug. 7. Voisine's home was bombed while he and his wife and a 13-year-old son were asleep in upstairs bedrooms. None was injured by the blast,

McCrea said many of the calls came from persons who declared they were afraid to give their names. "All indications are that this is a powerful organization," he "All indications are that

Granger, an extremely modest person, thinks about track in fall, winter, spring and summer-even when he's assisting the coaches in other sports. His enthusiasm is highly contagious and it is for that reason that the Rough Riders to-senior division a year from now. Granger does not like to think that the Seidel twins, Jerry and Al. have run their last race for him. He's extremely proud that they ran one-two for him in the sprints-Jerry, first; Al, secondand that they were half the senior relay team which set one of the four records yesterday. The other bination consisted of Wilbur Berg Ray Alsbury. The time for the half-mile was one minute 31 tenths of a second the record esablished by the same quartet in the preliminaries.

Incidentally, Berg and the Seidel twins were component parts of the quartet which established the relay record of 1:32 last year.

Alsbury will report for more work next year, but Berg and Dan McDougall, who won the senior 200vard low hurdles will be gone. Granger thinks that Alsbury be a great hurdler next year, if he keeps on improving.

The Roosevelt coach derives a great deal of consolation from the fact that his juniors came through to regain that championship from Beaumont. The Blue Jackets, first in 1935, finished second with 27½ Soldofsky Proves Star.

The performance rendered by Soldofsky, who won the junior 100 and 220 and ran on the recordbreaking relay team, warmed Granger's heart. Bob is one of the lads upon whom Granger is figur-ing for his tenth championship Soldofsky's mates on the halfmile relay team were George Schae-fer, Robert Bettlach and John Gamble. Aided by Soldofsky's great furlong sprint as anchor man, he Rough Riders finished 1:35.9, which was eight-tenths of a econd better than the 1931 Roose velt team did.

A part from the dominance of the meet by the Crimson representatives, there were several other exhibitions which made the meet an interesting one.

A strong wind sweeping from the south and blowing directly into the faces of the sprinters, prevented any of the dash men from breaking records. However, the stiff breeze seemed to help Lloyd Brackman of Beaumont turn in a new record for the senior pole vault. Brackman made his runs, preparatory to leaping, with the wind. Besides that he was spurred on to do his utmost by a teammate, Fred ross, who also vaulted in better than record height. Brackman reached 11 feet seven inches, but Cross was stopped at 11 feet five inches. The old record of 11 feet four inches was set by Sommer of Soldan in 1929.

Sets Two Junior Marks. Wolfgang Schubert of McKinley was credited with two junior rec-ords. One of them, the half mile he made in the preliminaries last week and the other, the quartermile, he set yesterday. His time for the 440 was 53.6 seconds, which broke the 17-year old mark of Tom Hennings of Soldan, who was SENIOR DIVISION.

The meet will have an added interest this year because, at the instance of the United States Olympic Committee, two Olympic distance events have been placed on the program. These are the 3000-meter steeplechase and the 10,000-meter run. These two competitions are open to college club and A. A. U. men alike and are designed to improve American representation in these features.

America, for many years, has been weak in all running events tance.

Perhaps the most interesting event on the I C 4-A program is a special event at 1000 yards with some famous steppers competing including Charles Hornbostel, who ran for Indiana University as an undergraduate; Harry son, formerly of North Carolina University; and, probably, Joe Mangan formerly of Cornell. Be an Athlete-See the World

THE Olympic games will not end the activities of the Amercan stars, despite the long campaign they will have gone through this spring and summer.

At A. A. U. headquarters it was announced that more than 20 invitations have been received by the A. A. U. of the United States for post-Olympic track and field meets throughout Europe. Included among these is the dual meet between the United States and the British Empire at London, Aug. 15.

Olympic success has always been followed by such invitations and the athletes invited will enjoy an opportunity not otherwise possible for them.

Annually successful Americans are invited abroad in groups, and last year there were several "teams" touring Europe and the Orient.

On one occasion Loren Murchison, St. Louis sprinter, and his greatest rival, Charles Paddock, made a tour of the world seeing it without cost to themselves.

Athletes, with the approval of the A. A. U., are given permission to make these "all-expense" athletic junkets without prejudice today, although at one time Charley Paddock was in the bad graces of the Amateur Athletic Union because of unsanctioned touring ac-

INJURY TO ARM TO KEEP CUBS' SHORTSTOP OUT FOR THE SEASON

CHICAGO, May 23.—The Chicago Cubs, National League champions, harassed by a six-game losing streak and a skid from the top to the bottom of the first division, have taken another citp on the chin from old man bad luck.

Shortstop Bill Jurges, who led the circuit in fielding for that position seen—one between William Tilden as a regular for the remainder of son, Chicago bone specialist, exam- clear in my mind as if it had hapined the arm Jurges injured in a pened yesterday. Curiously enough, slide April 30 and announced that Jurges, while he may play occasionally, will not be able to play from day to day without fear of permanent injury.
Dr. Ryerson said the slide aggravated an old injury and that a small piece of bone in Jurges' throwing arm has worked loose. The member will be placed in a Jurges is hopeful that his arm.

enough to return him to the regular Cub lineup. He will undergo an operation, however, at the close Jurges, with Billy Herman at cond base, formed what many experts considered the best keystone ack combination in the league. His place has been filled by Woody

For the Cubs, the season thus far put them away. So that everyone has been far from reminiscent of could see that the match was really the sensational 21-game winning a battle between these two plans of streak which carried them into the world series last fall. Lon Warneke, their mound ace, has been particularly disappointing. In seven starts he finished only one game and has a record of two wins and three losses,

The "silver lining," however, may be the acquisition of Curt Davis from the Phillies in a deal in which the Cubs gave Chuck Klein, Fabian Kawalik and a reported $50,000. Ethan Allan, outfielder, also came to Chicago in the deal and will be played regularly. Dawith Chicago.

NEW YORK, May 23. - In contrast to his team's lowly standing in the International League, Smead Jolley of the Albany Senators continued his heavy hitting last week Dykes walked and the bases again to hold his place at the top of the circuit's batsmen.

During the week ending Wednesday, the unofficial averages show that the former Chicago White Sox outfielder was at bat 31 times in eight games, pounded out 13 hits, including five doubles, and boosted his average 10 points to .392.

Jolley was the only one of last week's leaders to retain his position as Frank McGowan of Buffalo climbed into second place with an and the bases were filled. Solters average of .371. McGowan showed a gain of only one percentage point the tying run. Bell flied to Haas with 12 hits in 32 times at bat but TWO RUNS. the other leaders failed to show even that much of a gain.

The big advances of the week were made by Eddie Boland and Elburt Fletcher of the fast-stepping nura lined to Pepper. Appling Buffalo Bisons. Boland connected with 11 hits in 23 times at bat to end the week with .348 while Fletcher collected 12 hits in 26 trips run and scored behind Haas and RUNS. to the plate for a .339 average.

The other leaders: Leslie Scarsella, Toronto, .367; Babe Dahlgren, Syracuse, .362; Jim Brown, Rochester, .361; Marvin Olson, Buffalo, Eddie Phillips, Buffalo, .350, and Ernie Koy, Newark, .344.

Jolley's five doubles sent him in to a tie for the lead in that departnent of the game with McGowan with 17 each. Scarsella pounded out only one triple but it gave him a total of five and undisputed possion of the lead.

Tennis Players Should Always Guard Against Overconfidence In the Opinion of Mrs. Moody

By Helen Wills Moody

(Copyright, 1936.)
In a tennis match, there is a "situation" in almost every rally. It is what makes the game so much fun to play. Somtimes, however, there will be a situation which will be the dominant feature of a match. One which will arouse your curiosity, and which you will try to interpret, not only from the point of view of the game itself, but as well from those aspects of thought and influence which are part of the mind in wider fields, in which an incident in a game of tennis can be only a most infinitesimal happening, but still related to it by the human equation.

As an illustration of this I recall, Tilden would regain the accuracy the season. Dr. Edwin H. Ryer- but the essence of the match is as enced in the game of tennis, the outcome would probably have been different.

Knew Each Other's Style.
But both Tilden and Cochet had played in many tournaments. And they had often played against each other. So that there was nothing new to either of them. Tilden knew from experience that the only way for him to defeat Cochet would be with long deep powerful drives ally work the Frenchman out of the net. Cochet, on his part, knew beat Tilden he would have to go to the net as soon as he could in every rally. When Cochet was at the net he could manage practically anything-volleys, smashes-not only to get them, but campaign. One felt that were Tilden able to maintain the ascendancy in carrywinner. It meant that his game would have to be well nigh perfect. And so it was. As the match went field for study on the part of those on, one could not but wonder at the perfection of his play. The accuracy and speed of his serves. The could learn quite painlessly, because severity, the length, and the place-ment of his drives, which were ber of philosophical and psychologwere passing the net at a low trajectory, allowing only the smallest margin of safety. But obviously human beings cannot be machines and therefore not perfect during a the match was almost his. He had only a few more points to win. Cochet, quick to see his opportu-

one of the most thrilling and in- which had left him for the time betriguing matches that I have ever ing, and it was certainly within his last year, will be lost to the club and Henri Cochet on the center it was here that the great store of court at Wimbledon some years experience that belonged to Tilden experience that belonged to Tilden ago. I have forgotten the score, failed him when he could have of the fact that he knew he couldn't But it was a time when confidence was not as well as wariness. The subsequent winning of this match by Cochet was recorded as one of olic High League games. the great upsets in Wimbledon tennis, and one of the most myste-

> Paradoxically, as proved by this match, experience may be either a friend or an enemy, because of the confidence that it breeds How then can one make the most out of experience?

First, if possible, by not letting it make one over-confident. This does not mean cultivating a false modesty, but rather keeping before one both sides of the picture. If you the match is not yet over. And if you are away behind, you should repeat to yourself that the match is not yet over, because you know from experience that it cannot be cided. There is a psychological letdown which accompanies over-confidence which is a menace to one's best expression, until one learns to recognize it as such. I believe that there is, in the world of sport, a very interesting people who desire to know how our minds work. And that ical truths in sport, which would belong not only to games but to the wider field of human experience as well. But to find the pro titled "The philosophy and psychology of sport," would be a difficult undertaking, indeed. One would always be in doubt as to whether the spirit of the thing were lacking if one were learning from a profeswere studying with an athlete who had turned professor, one would be wondering if the professor-athlet It was logical to suppose that had enough sense to do the job well.

MRS. GLEASON'S SUIT IN HANDS OF JURY

One of Members Interrupts Her Lawyer Over Remark on Will Signature.

The jury in the suit of Mrs. Naomi Rogers Gleason to collect $5000 from the Aetna Life Insurance Co. on a policy issued to her husband William Gleason, veteran of the St. Louis fire department and professional ball player, about a year before his death in July, 1932, was excused until Monday after they had failed to reach a erdict in 35 minutes of delibera-

Testimony in the case ended yesterday after Mrs. Gleason took the witness stand in her own defense to refute the company's contention that her husband misrepresented his age when he bought the policy and that his name had been forged to other documents pertaining to the insurance. The case went to the jury shortly after noon today at the concluion of final arguments by neys. Jerome Schotten, 25 Brentod drive, a juryman, interrupted Mrs. Gleason's lawyer during the argument when he declared that Gleason's signature on the applica-tion for insurance had been conceded genuine, with the remark: "He did not say that was con-ceded." The attorney turned to opposing counsel for confirmation, but the latter replied that he had admitted it looked the same bu had not conceded it to be genuine. Judge's Instructions. Instructing the jury, Judge Davis said that a verdict favorable to the plaintiff, Mrs. Gleason, should be eturned unless it had been shown that the policy was a "wager," in that she was not married to Gleason when it was purchased, and that she had paid the premiums on the policy, or unless it was proved that Gleason had not applied for the change of beneficiary from his estate to his wife. The court directed that in case of a verdict for the plaintiff, a judgment for $5000 should be returned if they found that Gleason vas 66 years old as he had stated when applying for the insurance, but that if it had been shown that he was older, a judgment against the company for an amount varying from $4715 to $2278, depending on the age the jury found him to he should be returned. On direct examination by her attorney, Patrick H. Cullen, Mrs. Gleason told the jury in Federal Judge Davis' Court, where the case was heard for two days, that she and Gleason married secretly at Alton in the Methodist Church, June 27, 1931. She saw Gleason sign the application for license in his own hand, she said, contradicting testimony of witnesses for the insurance company that the signa-ture was not Gleason's writing.

He took out the insurance policy short time later at his own suggestion, she said, and in her presence told the agent that he was 66 years old. She testified that she saw him sign other documents to which the insurance company has claimed his name was forged.

neither he nor Mrs. Gleason was not know he had a wife in St. permitted to answer Cullen's ques-

MIAMI, Fla., May 23.-Race wire to Miami booking estab-nts was "out of order" today rumors were current in in-ed circles of a $70,000 "killing" and in West Palm Beach on single horse race. led with the "killing" story another that one big Miami aker "welshed" on $30,000 of tailment of telephone service not directly linked with the ting over of the long shot at cragansett Park, when Mine Boy the Silver Stock Farm rened $353.60 for a $2 straight last Thursday. wire service largely was because of police raids durwhich 13 telephones were seized. ective Chief L. O. Scarboro d he was informed a Miami synlicate of bettors laid wagers on fine Boy with two bookies at West Palm Beach, with return of $24,000 om one and $15,000 at the other

In Miami, the syndicate was re-75, 50 and 25 to 1 across the ard. The Miami bookie said he ccessfully tried to reach the nt to tell him the bet was off hen he could not pass it along to farragansett in time to place the ney in the mutuels.

IF YOU ASK MY OPINION By Martha Carr

My dear Mrs. Carr: LEASE publish this in answer person who recently herself "The Other

I feel, with most wives, that if ther woman in the case of domestic difficulties would and confine her attentions and ctions to men who are not eve less desire to stray. This states that wives do not try to understand their husbands. other hand, were it not this woman, the husband have higher standards for nen; he would not seek those who wait on the corner or call him by telephone at his home, thus destroying the tranquility the wife may have been able to obtain since the last episode was oblig-ingly conveyed to her.

Why, oh why, Mrs. Carr, cannot they set their eyes on men, not eur husbands; for the husbands rarely feel beyond the old line, "My wife does not understand me."
(That has been handed out for generations.)

The truth is, the man would not marry this other woman once in red cases, were the wife to allow him the freedom he thinks he wants.

Must we sit by serenely and see selves and wait until they are ready to come home and be content? Isn't there a way to make these women see the folly of such affairs, the heartaches they cause the humiliation both socially and business world?

Do the men not stop to wonder if they would not miss the well organized household they are acned to, were they to accept the fly-by-night existence the other woman would give them?

Please forgive me for writing so at length. I could write forever, If I thought I could save some otherwise sane husband from causing his wife the heartaches I have known and the doubt which makes the days interminable.

It all could be squelched at the start if the other woman would say "No" to such an arrangement. His would be piqued and he would realize that he was appreciated at home at least. Not the Other Woman.

NEW YORK, May 23. OT weather costumes have hit Ha new high on the thermometer of chic. For those blistering days in town when the sun scorches city streets American designers have created the smartest outfits the fashion world has seen. They are clean cut and formal enough to be smart, sheer enough to be cool, and lightened with smart white touches which keep them looking crisp at all times.

Steel gray and ice white is the newest combination, but navy blue and sea foam white, forest green or wood brown and daisy white, or black and chalk white also are big favorites. A two-piece suit or a topped by a jacket or cape make the smartest effects accented by accessories which harmonize.

Navy blue and black organza, net, dotted swiss, chiffon and sheer silk all are used to make simple frocks with fairly high necklines and short or long sleeves finished with snow white collars and cuffs of organdy or pique. With them go matching short jackets (trim and fitted or loose and swagger) or waistlength capes.

which are a decided variation from the old flower design are much in vogue. White or confetti colored coin dots, crowns, seashells, stars and animals stamp many of the new prints. Monotone silhouette prints—white on copper, wine or navy—and two-toned checks also are seen. Some are accented by a third color as a white crepe printed in black asters and worn with a wine red crushed chiffon girdle.

Suits of cotton pique, rayon suiting or "non-crushable" linen are other big favorites. Often they are worn without blouses.

Accessories put the finishing touches to the outfits. Nettie Rosenstein turns out smart town togs for hot days by adding flower toques, boutonnieres and suede gloves all of the same shade-a white carnation toque and gloves with a putty crepe flecked with white and red carnation accessories with blue.

Other designers like big hats wide brimmed flat crowned white or black straws and gloves to match with the ensembles. Slipcover handbags, whose detachable washable cotton covers come in colors to harmonize with any costume, are another accessory which has found great favor.

Brant Gets a Telephone Call From Aunt Marie, Who Keeps Her Original Promise to Fay.

CHAPTER TWELVE

P EFORE the phone rang, Brant had been sitting in the darkness B of his room, watching the smoke from his pipe swirl out the window, to lose itself over the mean little street below. Twilight sounds came up to him, the chatter of a rickety old car; the excited calling of a group of children playing hide and seek, with a lamppost for a base and the alleys and courts of the buildings for hiding places; occasional scraps of conversation, timed with the steps of passers-by.

The darkness seemed fitted to his mood; he could imagine himself an unseen spectator of life, watching the parade of happenings that concerned him not at all; feeling like a capable actor, forced to watch the play from the wings.

Even if he'd started right after she hungrily. Once again Fay felt the wonderful comfort of strong arms fore three; then he'd have to sleep about her; her head seemed heavy, Brant sat with a piece of toast before his gaping mouth. "Hysterics?" he whispered to Aunt Marie, but she, looking at her niece, didn't think so. "I have an idea what she means," she interpreted. "I'll have to tell you about it some time—not now. The expression runs 'poor as a church mouse,' you know."

"Yas." Brant looked over at Fay.

"Yes." Brant looked over at Fay, who was wiping the tears of laughter from her eyes. "Church mouse describes it, all right; that's me. Out of a job, no money—and with a $3000 roadster that belongs to my ate employer sitting downstairs. His eyes grew dreamy. "I think I'll break him in two."

"Is the car a 'he'?" Aunt Marie "No; I was thinking of Mark. The old playboy! And at his age!" He seemed trying to grasp that Mark could have done such a thing. "I'd forget about Mark," Aunt Marie advised. "Forget all about him. Let's see, you're an engineer, "Yes," Brant admitted.

A UNT MARIE leaned her head on her hand, "Now what could an engineer do with $25,000?" she wondered. Fay gasped, but Brant didn't seem to notice.

"That's a rhetorical question," he onceded, "and it doesn't require an answer—but I've got one. He could go into business for himself; ecome a contractor and wander all over the face of the earth building odd bridges, and office buildings, and apartments. Why, do you know anyone who wants to give away $25,000?" He began to laugh now, as though he had said something ery funny.

"Yes," Aunt Marie said, "I do." She smiled at their vacant faces. "The money goes with the girl," she pointed at Fay. "It was a promise made myself a long time ago, and one I'm determined to follow, whether you like it or not." Brant swallowed and gripped the hand that Fay had slipped into

"Now," Aunt Marie continued, "all you have to do is win the girl.
And somehow, I don't think that will be very hard."

No easy answer to any social problem u ever the right one.

From 25 to 55 is the main part of a man's active life, and during that period some men are egotistical, asinine, selfish, foolish, expansive and ambitious and if so, they remain so until they shuffle off, whereas, others are unselfish, quiet, cautious, modest and philanthropic, and still others are in between. If we took all the nonsense out of public statements about human nature there wouldn't be much left, simply because we don't know very much about it.

EXPLANATION OF YESTERDAY'S CARTOON

THE COINCIDENT GIRLS—On April 6, 1930, two baby girls were born to parents of the same name and in-itials at the same hospital on the same day. It happened at the Beth El Hospital, Colorado Spring. The mothers did not know one another, although both were named Mrs. E. W. Young. Each had her mind already made up about a name for her daughter, and both babies were named Barbara Jean Young. It was not until the families left the hospital, and a mixup of bills was straightened out, that the astonished mothers first met. One E. W. Young family lives at 729 East Boulder street, Colorado Springs, and the other at 839 East Costilla street, where the two Barbara Jones jointly celebrated their 6th birthday recently

PIGEON'S HEART OUTSIDE ITS BODY—One of the strangest poultry freaks ever seen at the Fulton Marketin Chicago, is a white king pigeon, recently brought there from California, with its heart almost totally exposed?
through the breast. Samuel Rosenthal found the strange bird while inspecting a shipment. The heart protrudesthrough the breast which is ordinarily protected by the bre astbone, and is enclosed in a semi-transparent covering of membrane so that one can see and feel the beating of the heart.

NERVES ARE WRIGLEY'S HELPS YOU SHOOT IN PAR

The wicked fleeth where no man pursueth. And the delegates scamper where no contestant challenges. They are always out in the aisle like shoes in a Pullman sleeper.

While the delegates parade with their banners they also utter shrill cries of their uninstructed species. These chirpings and mumbles have no meaning and no significance. But it is the squeaky axle that gets the grease. And your compromise candidate is usually the result of these spontaneous orchestrations of uninstructed talent.

. . . The scampering and hurdling in the aisles is a sort of cross-country amateur hour. The winners get four years in Washington vaudeville.
